After high school graduation, a young girl discovers how exciting, adventurous, and exasperating choosing a career can be. She decides to get a taste of college life, dabble in the field of office work and observe the opportunities offered in medicine before making her final decision. After much expense to the family, the real investment materializes; the frivolous young girl finally arrives at her decision and takes a certain course, as does the majority of young girls of the world, thus surprising everyone including herself.
