ED BECKETT & IRENE GENNARO

Open A Season to Remember at the Trenton City Museum

The Trenton City Museum and the Trenton Museum Society are proud to present the art of Ed Beckett and Irene Gennaro.

The artists' websites provide insight into their work, as follows:

"Of Self" by Ed Beckett

ED BECKETT deals with "expressions" and "connections" through paintings, prints, sculpture and ceramics. The body of work categorized as "expressions" deals with Mr. Beckett's response to issues regarding spirituality, psychology, internal feelings, dreamstates and social issues that include racism, drug abuse, mental illness and healthcare.

"Connections" addresses Mr. Beckett's exploration of the unseen relationships that bind each of us to one another, to our Creator, to our society, to our fears and ambitions and to our own beings. These relationships are three dimensionalized, codified, colored and appear consistently throughout these artworks.

IRENE GENNARO creates painted wood sculpture using the technique of the votive, a symbol used in many religions. According to Ms. Gennaro, "My work is dream-based and enriched by the images suggested to me. The images are part of a continuum of forms, changing and emerging since childhood. Specific forms may lead me to research an unfamiliar cultural mythology where the identity of the image is revealed."

"Garden of Augurs" by Irene Gennaro

Ms. Gennaro has had many solo shows throughout the United States and in Japan, and has won numerous awards for her sculptures, including Polich Art Work's First Bronze Casting Award, 1999. She is also a member of the Sculptors Guild.

The exhibit opens on September 18 and runs through November 7, with an opening reception on Saturday, September 18.

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

A Brief Note of Thanks...

Warmest greetings and welcome to the 2004-2005 season of the Trenton Museum Society...it will surely be "A Season to Remember."

I've had the opportunity to work with the Museum Society as both a volunteer and a Trustee for the past five years, and within that short period of time, the Society and I have paralleled each other in terms of professional growth. In the fall of 1999, I began my career in the arts by accepting an internship at Ellarslie. Since then, I have become a Trustee, Committee Chair, Vice President and most recently, the President of the Board of Trustees. At the same time, I have watched and have been privileged to participate in the growth of the Museum Society as one of Trenton's leading arts organizations. Neither I nor the Museum Society could have come this far without the encouragement, dedication and support of so many people and on behalf of myself and the Trenton Museum Society, I wish to thank each and every one of you.

And now for something completely different...

As in the past, there is an air of anticipation lingering about in the galleries at Ellarslie...perhaps you have noticed it? For those of us in the "know" it is the discernible air of great and exciting things to come. I like to compare the feeling to that of the one you get when seated on a roller coaster that is ascending the first, and of course highest hill. We are "clink, clink, clink"-ing away...seated in the front of the coaster, pausing briefly at the peak of the hill right before the inevitable plummet...and isn't the view gorgeous?

Enjoy this issue of The Ellarslie Muse, and I hope you will join us this year on our ride through the 2004-2005 season of the Trenton Museum Society...didn't I tell you it would be A Season to Remember?

Looking forward to great things...

Stephanie Morgano, President
Trenton Museum Society Board of Trustees

The Trenton City Museum and the McCarter Theatre Center Present:

Blue Notes: Chronicling the Blues from Polk County to Trenton

In conjunction with the McCarter Theatre Center's production of "Polk County" by Zora Neale Hurston, the Trenton City Museum is hosting "Blue Notes: Chronicling the Blues from Polk County to Trenton," an exhibit and concert celebrating the blues. The exhibit runs from October 2 through December 5, with an opening reception on October 8 from 5 to 7 p.m. The reception will be followed by a blues concert from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. featuring Joe Zook with James Cheadle of Blues Deluxe, harmonica virtuoso Steve Guyger and vocalists Doris Spears and Georgie Bonds.

Joe Zook . . . is lead guitarist and vocalist of Joe Zook and Blues Deluxe, a seasoned, powerhouse blues band well-known in the Central Jersey area. Together since 1979, the band has performed extensively in the New Jersey, New York and Philadelphia area. Blues Deluxe has shared the stage with such blues greats as Muddy Waters, Buddy Guy, Junior Wells, James Cotton, Sam & Dave and many others.

began playing the harmonica in the late 1960's, and his passion for blues harmonica eventually took him to Chicago to learn at the feet of the masters. Now living in Philadelphia, Mr. Guyger and his band The Excellos have been playing blues for over 20 years. He has toured with Jimmy Rogers, among others, and has shared the stage with contemporary harmonica players including Little Sammy Davis, Carey Bell, Little Charlie & The Nightcats and many others.

Doris Spears . . . , a Trenton resident, was born in Mississippi and raised in the Midwest. She has been singing professionally since the age of 13, then went on to sing at open mic nights in Chicago jazz clubs at age 17. In the late seventies, she came to New York touring with Lionel Hampton. Ms. Spears will be releasing a CD with her blues band 9 Fold Muse in December.

Born and raised in the Germantown section of Philadelphia, Georgie "The Blacksmith" Bonds got his break in the early 1990's when he performed "Stormy Monday" at an open mic night at The Barbary. Blues legend Sonny Rhodes, who was hosting that night, took a liking to Mr. Bonds and became his mentor. Mr. Bonds now hosts the monthly open mic blues jam at Warmdaddy's, Philadelphia's preeminent blues club, and offers aspiring musicians the same support he received from Sonny Rhodes.

THE TRENTON MUSEUM SOCIETY UNVEILS AN EXCITING NEW WEBSITE

By ~ Greg Baber

Highly anticipated, and long overdue, the Trenton City Museum is today sporting a new website, designed to better showcase the museum's permanent collection, its rich and diverse cultural programs, and its rotating exhibitions of contemporary art.

In the Collection area, visitors to the site can view a sampling of the museum's permanent collection in the categories of Decorative Arts, Fine Arts, and Historical Artifacts. Small 'thumbnail' images provide a quick overview of each piece, behind which larger, more detailed images reveal a piece's intricate detail and subtle beauty, along with information about its origin, composition and size. A personal favorite of mine, the Cobalt Blue Coffee Set, shows the delicate features of this extraordinary piece produced by Lenox and acquired by the museum as a gift from Bolton Holmes. Future enhancements to the website will document and detail more of the museum's permanent collection, and provide tools for both the casual visitor and the professional researcher to locate items of interest.

The Exhibitions and Events area highlights the expositions, workshops and special events planned for the upcoming season. Listing the dates and times of each event, including those of the Opening Receptions, the page provides a quick glance at the extraordinary artistic talent the museum's Director, Brian O. Hill, has assembled for your enjoyment. For the connoisseur, be sure to visit the News page, featuring details about our "Wine Experience" and "All About Chocolate" events, which will tempt even the most ardent dieter.

The About Ellarslie section details the history of the Ellarslie building, facts about the surrounding Cadwalader Park, a fascinating account of the history of Trenton Pottery Making written by David J. Goldberg, and links to other area cultural attractions. Finally, the Museum Store section provides a link to "ShopForMuseums.com," a website where shoppers can purchase items from their favorite retailers and have a portion of the proceeds donated to the Trenton Museum Society. Future enhancements to this section will feature some of the items for sale in the museum store, "Molly's -- The Shop at Ellarslie," including some of the pieces produced by local artists and displayed in the expositions.

Good websites are almost always "works-in-progress", and Ellarslie.org is no different. The Trenton Museum Society will continually improve and enhance the site to fulfill its mission of sustaining and nurturing the cultural life of Trenton and its artists, and fostering awareness in fine and decorative arts. We invite you to visit the site www.Ellarslie.org often, participate in the many events the museum has to offer, and consider joining the Museum Society to support these programs and help preserve the rich, artistic history that is Trenton, New Jersey.

It's All About Chocolate - Again!

Thanks to your support, "It's All About Chocolate" is becoming an annual fund-raiser for the Trenton Museum Society. Just like last year, this pre-Valentine's Day event will include tastings of chocolate, wine and coffee. Coming three days before Valentine's Day, it's a great time to pick up gifts for your sweetie or just share a special evening out. Save the date: Friday, February 11, 2005, and visit www.Ellarslie.org for more details.

Trenton Artists Workshop Celebrates Its 25th Anniversary

The Trenton City Museum played host to The Trenton Artists Workshop Association's (TAWA) celebration of its first 25 years with an exhibit of over 60 artists. The exhibit ran from June 26 through September 12 and included an opening reception and scholarship presentation on June 26, as well as gallery talks and demonstrations throughout July and August.

As always, the works were accomplished and varied in style and form, but the Trenton Museum Society can't help having a special fondness for the painting by Mel Leipzig of Trenton City Museum Director Brian O. Hill, entitled "Staircase at Ellarslie."

TRUSTEE SPOTLIGHT: Mary Kay Girmscheid

Mary Kay Girmscheid is chairperson of the Trenton Museum Society's store committee and works to keep "Molly's - The Shop at Ellarslie" stocked with a wide range of unique items for children and adults. Luckily for the museum, Mary Kay brings a wealth of experience to her TMS role. She began her retail career at age 16, selling cosmetics in a drug store in Washington, D.C. She went on to manage a toy store offering one-of-a-kind children's gifts, then a high-end gift store offering crystal, glassware and other specialty items. Her experience with unique gifts continued with a card and gift shop that transitioned from traditional items to offerings from unique, independent producers. She then moved from Washington to Delaware, where she managed a children's clothing store.

In the late 1980's, Mary Kay came to New Jersey where she worked with a builder designing high-end, custom homes. She then moved on to work for a bath design company in Princeton. Today Mary Kay has her own bath design business and also designs tile layouts for kitchens and baths at The Tile Shop in Hamilton, NJ.

Mary Kay continues to indulge her passion for unique retail through her work for the museum store. Each year, Mary Kay and her store committee travel to gift and stationery shows to find the cream of the crop to offer to Trenton City Museum visitors. Store committee members Beth Feltus, Chuck Lorimer, Susan Hogan, Nicole Yull, Judy Sears and Christina Rang, along with Mary Kay, ensure the museum offers visitors high-quality, unique items at a range of prices.

The museum store contributes a significant amount of revenue to the Trenton Museum Society's budget, so members are encouraged to visit the store when looking for birthday, anniversary and holiday gifts. The store features gifts tailored to each season, with a special holiday boutique in December highlighting local artists and crafters.

Because the Trenton Museum Society staff is entirely volunteer, the committee is always looking for additional volunteers to work at the store. Retail experience is preferred, but anyone with an interest in helping the museum and working with the public is welcome. To volunteer, please contact the Trenton Museum Society at 609-989-1191.
